LAST SEASON FOR "THE COMMON GLORY"

Williamsburg, Va.- Although the main purpose of "The Common Glory" is to entertain, Paul Green's symphonic drama of the founding of the American nation has been a summertime history lesson to more than 750,000 people.

Spectacularly successful since its beginning, the outdoor production has been progressively more warmly received each season, until now it is generally considered as a national institution. Now in its 10th season, "The Common Glory" is being presented nightly except Monday at the Matoaka Lake Amphitheatre in Williamsburg.

Paradoxically, however, "The Glory" — as it is popularly known — might end its decade-long run when the current season closes on September 2 at the apparent height of its popularity.

Next year the Jamestown Corporation, the non-profit, educational organization which produces the drama, will present an entirely new production as a special feature of the 1957 Jamestown Festival. At present there are no plans to revive "The Common Glory" in 1958.

The final performance of "The Glory" will mark the end of the longest run of any theatrical production ever presented in Virginia. More than 500 performances of the noted drama have been played.

The entertainment value of "The Common Glory" is obvious for many reasons to viewers with various interests. The hopes, struggles and the final victory of the early American patriots are offset by bubbling comedy which has brought universal laughter. The show is further lightened by lilting dances, a 30-voice choir and a 16-piece "little symphony" orchestra.

The cast of 150 members is under the direction of Howard Scammond for the sixth consecutive year. He has been associated with the production since its beginning.

David Weston carries the key role of Thomas Jefferson in the 1956 edition of the drama. During the winter months, Weston, a 23-year-old student at William and Mary, frequently rehearsed alone on the huge amphitheatre stage to better his acting and speaking abilities. He has appeared in three previous seasons of "The Glory."

The role of narrator, an integral part of the production, is held by Gray Bromleigh for the third year. Michael Hanft plays the colonial comic Cephus Sicklemore for the second year, and playing opposite him is Pat Swell as the Widow Huzzitt.

APPOMATTOX GARMENT COMPANY EXPANDING

buted significantly to the development. Although the growth of the Appomattox Garment Company covers the period from 1947 to date, full maturity of the opration dates back to the 1953-1954 period during which the question of union representation was resovled. After a seventeen month strike, the nonunion status of those associated with the company was established, and subsequently the major development has taken place.

Because of the ability to maintain a full 40 hour week week, in contrast to abbreviated work weeks elsewhere, coupled with the above average hourly earnings made available by the company, take-home pay for the folks on the Appomattox Garment Company "team" has pushed way ahead of the field. The company official stated that one of the most important advances that have been made within the organization has been the adoption of the most comprehensive health and welfare program available anywhere. Complete hospital and surgical benefits as well as a substantial weekly sum is promptly available to everyone that is out sick and unable to work. The company pays the total premium for this health security and perhaps the most unusual aspect of the program is the promptness of payments. Checks for all sick benefits are made out and paid on the same day the bills are submitted.

In addition to Mr. Lawson, the policies of the Corporation are directed by Robert Englander and Evelyn Bailey. In keeping pace with the rapid advancement of the company,- two experienced executives joined the organization within the last six months. Mrs. Cotielle Phelps Trujillo, who originally hails from Appomattox and who was formerly the manager of a local stitching operation, associated with the company last April. At about the same time, Mr. George Bunch, of Lynchburg, resigned his position as production manager of a hand-bag firm to also affiliate with The Garment Company.

When interviewed relative to the future of our local industry, Mr. Englander stated without reservation that "prospects are better today than they have been any time in my recollection. The period ahead is unquestionably going to separate the men from the boys in industry; and in our particular business, companies that have developed a firm technical and organizational foundation allowing them to compete favorably in what we expect to be a highly competitive market, will realize accomplishments that would have been considered impossible, ten years ago." Mr. Englander went on to say that "one of the reassuring sources of satisfaction our firm has experienced during the past year or so is the number of competing garment producers that have visited with us to observe our methods of manufacturing. We are always delighted to have our competitors visit with us never fearing any ill effects as the one important possession we have is the people with whom we work and that is something they cannot take away in their notebooks."

MR AND MRS. T. W. MOSES MARRIED 60 YEARS

12 cents per pound, and the other necessities were in proportion."

Mr. Moses was later engaged in the warehouse business and was a tobacco buyer on the bright leaf market until 1919. At that time he became co-owner of the present Moses Motor Company, and is still an active partner in this firm, although his hours at the place of business are not as long as in former years.

They have two children, State Senator Charles T. Moses, and Mrs. Frank C. Dresser, both of Appomattox; six grandchildren and 15 great grandchildren.

Mrs. Moses is the sister of the late Mrs. Samuel L. Ferguson, and the late Richard Clifton Mann. Mr. Moses has two living brothers, William A. Moses and Lem Moses, both of Appomattox County.

Mr. Moses is a Justice of the Peace; a steward and trustee in the Memorial Methodist Church, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Farmers National Bank. He and his wife have been prominent in the civic, church and social life of this county.

Their hobby is growing flowers, which is evidenced by their colorful garden. Although Mrs. Moses is not physically able to tend her garden, she is able to sit in the yard and do an excellent job of directing "Tam," her affectionate name for her husband.

In celebration of their sixtieth wedding anniversary, a family picnic was held on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas Moses, Jr., Monday evening. Sharing the honors with his grandparents, was 'Charles Thomas' who celebrated his 34th birthday anniversary.

PETERSBURG DRAMA TO FEATURE CAST OF 100

President James Madison said of Petersburg, "Truly you are the cockade city of the union." That nickname has stuck.

Today, 144 years later, a group of community-minded citizens are pooling their varied talents and time in a project to dramatize the birth of their beloved "Cockade City."

This presentation is appropriately titled "The Cradle of the Cockade." It is to be enacted in the heart of the crater, historical battleground of Civil War. The single performance is scheduled for June 12, 1957.

At the head of the city - wide movement is Walter T. McCandlish, a retired luggage manufacturer, and H. Augustus Miller, Jr., past principal of the Petersburg High School and a city councilman-elect. The two, chairman and co-chairmen respectively for the Jamestown Festival Committee of Petersburg, will head what is the largest city committee ever formed there. The group, which held its organizational meeting recently, is composed of more than 100 persons and promises to increase.

"The Cradle of the Cockade" will be a 10-act dramatization of the development and growth of this city of more than 35,000 population. Dances and songs of the period from 1645 through 1812 will embellish the performance.

Edwin Betts, high school English instructor, dramatics teacher and former member of the "Common Glory" staff at Williamsburg, is the man who has task of shaping this historical sketch into a dramatic performance with a cast of more than 100.

"It's going to be a community project," Director Betts said. He plans to recruit the large cast locally.

The entire enactment will revolve around Maj. Gen. Abraham Wood, chairman McCandlish said.

Wood, he said, holds a little known place in local history. "Peter Jones, founder of Petersburg, has had all the credit over the years, he stated, and we plan to give credit where credit is due.

The actor who portrays Wood will be the narrator for the production.

Gen. Wood, reportedly the grandfather of Peter Jones, was in charge of Ft. Henry in 1812.

"The Cradle of the Cockade" is to coincide with the Jamestown celebration in 1957 and will be held there as the climax of the first Petersburg home coming week.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR GOOD STAND OF ALFALFA

Blackaburg, Va.- Chances of securing a good stand of alfalfa are improved if a few simple rules are followed, says G. R. Epperson, Associate Agronomist of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute Extension Service.

VPI recommendations follow:

1. Lime a sufficient lime to give a pH of 6.5 to 7.0. If a soil test has not been made, collect a sample at once and have it tested to determine lime needs.

2. Apply the amount and analysis of fertilizer needed, depending on the kind of soil and its fertility level. Usually 1,000 to 1,200 pounds per acre will be sufficient. Analyses most frequently recommended are 2-12-12, 0-14-14, and 5-10-10 or grades within these ratios. Always use borated fertilizer for alfalfa.

3. Purchase certified seed of an adapted variety. At lantic, Williamsburg, Kansas Common, Oklahoma Approved, Buffalo, and Narragansett are the recommended varieties. Use 20 to 25 pounds when seeded alone, 12 to 18 pounds with 3 to 5 pounds of orchard grass.

4. Inoculate seed immediately before seeding, using a commercial alfalfa culture. Do not expose inoculated seed to sunlight. Seed covered lightly as soon as possible. Reinoculate any seed not used within 24 hours.

5. Seed on a firm seedbed after the first good rain in August in Northern Piedmont and Western Virginia and two to three weeks later in Southern Piedmont and Tidewater Virginia. Roll with a corrugated roller immediately after seeding to put the seeds into the soil and further firm the sedbed. If a corrugated roller is not available harrow lightly with a spike tooth or seeding harrow. Avoid covering seed with more than 1-2 inch of soil.

No Double Header

"John, did you pay my little brother to remain out of the parlor?" the young woman soberly demanded.

"Er-yes, I did," her timid beau replied. "I hope I was not presuming."

"Not at all," came the laughing rejoinder. "I just wanted to make sure that that little chiseler didn't collect from both of us."

NEWS FOR VETERANS

The President signed the Survivor Benefits Act revising benefits for the dependents of deceased servicemen and veterans who died of service-connected causes.

Veterans Administration announced that it is taking immediate steps to put this new law into operation even though payments cannot begin prior to January 1, 1957, the effective date of the Act.

VA stressed that this law does NOT change death pension benefits to widows and children of veterans whose deaths were not as a result of service.

Widows, dependent parents and guardians of orphan children receiving compensation for the service-connected death of a veteran are requested NOT to contact VA for information.

Veterans Administration will notify each person receiving death compensation under present law concerning his rights under the new law.

The new law is designed to:

1. Revise the death compensation program by providing monthly payments to widows partially related to military pay; slightly increase existing uniform payments for orphan children; and to provide a sliding scale of benefits for dependent parents subject to certain annual income limitations.

2. Extend Social Security coverage to those in the armed forces on a contributory basis; and

3. Revise the six months death grautity to range from a minimum of $800 to a maximum of $5,000. This will be administered by the various departments.

The new law also eliminates coverage of service personnel under the Servicemen's Indemnity Act (the so-called "$10,000 free insurance") and coverage of reserve personnel under the Federal Employees Compensation Act on and after January 1, 1957.

The new law continues the right of veterans disabled in service to apply to VA for the five-year policy or any of the six permanent plans of National Service Life Insurance within one year from the date VA finds their disabilities to be service-connected.

IMPROVEMENTS KEEP WOOL IN RUNNING

Research now underway should strengthen the position of Mary's little lamb as a producer of fiber as well as of meat, report VPI specialists.

No one has yet discovered a perfect fabric for all purposes. But in the public rush to try new synthetic materials, improvements in natural fibers through modern chemical methods are sometimes overlooked, the specialists suggest.

They say it will be worth watching what happens to woolen fabrics over the next few years. U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists are searching for ways to increase the usefulness of wool by adding other desirable qualities to its natural resiliency and wrinkle-resistance.

Work is progressing, for example, on a wool fabric that would retain creases and pleats better. Ways are being found to make wool more resistant to shrinkage in laundering, and to make it softer in heavy fabrics. The scientists are improving bleaching methods and developing ways to make wool more resistant to soil. Also, treatment with chemicals is giving wool a resistance to moths and other organisms which attack it.
